The Magic Flute RELOADED
A contemporary musical comedy inspired by the classic Mozart opera, the songs are in the style of hip-hop and pop. A music CD is available with rehearsal tracks (with vocals) and performance-ready production tracks.

Merton Mercudio is suspended from school for uncontrollable fighting, and sentenced to four minutes in the land of Droon. We enter the whimsical land of Droon, and find it is really the world of Merton’s conscience and imagination. While there seeking his princess, Merton learns about anger management from King Meltdown, a self-centered, cowardly king; his daughter, the beautiful but rebellious Princess Melody; her mother, the bossy queen, Lady Notsofast, who holds her daughter prisoner; a two-headed, insult-slinging monster, and the cowardly but loveable Grumbo the Grindylow. For Merton, four minutes in Droon proves to be a valuable lesson—that will last him a lifetime. Code: MH6.

(SETTING: THE SIMILAR SCHOOL, BETWEEN CLASSES IN A HALLWAY)

At rise, Weird Melody is sitting in fetal position, tissue in hand, sniffling. Merton enters.)

MERTON: Hey, what’s wrong, Melody?

WEIRD MELODY: Nothing.

MERTON: Doesn’t look like nothing. It was the Spanish test, wasn’t it?

WEIRD MELODY: (Nodding) Sí.

MERTON: It is pretty nasty, isn’t it? The way Señora makes us get up in front of everyone.

WEIRD MELODY: I’d rather die then have a conversation with her—up there—in Spanish.

MERTON: Why don’t you go talk to her? Tell her you knew it, but you were nervous.

WEIRD MELODY: Nervous? I was more like muerta de miedo.

MERTON: Huh?

WEIRD MELODY: Scared to death.

(Enter Sammy, Eva, Deva and Zeva laughing with one another)

SAMMY: Como estas, Señorita Melody?

DEVA: (Laughing) More like Señorita Weirdo.
SAMMY: (To Eva) So, Señorita Weirdo, what is your favorite animal?

EVA: (Taunting) Mi animal preferido es el gusano de Canada.

ZEVA: Canada worms? Did she really say that?

WEIRD MELODY: I meant geese. Ganso. I was nervous.

SAMMY: More like stupid.

MERTON: (To Sammy) Okay, lay off her.

(Ignoring Merton, Sammy grabs Melody’s book bag, dumps it and finds a stuffed mini Canada goose. Deva forms a basket with her arms and he shoots the goose through it. Melody is humiliated.)

DEVA/EVA/ZEVA: Go—go—go—go—go—

WEIRD MELODY: Give it back, Sammy!

SAMMY: Hey, girls, it looks like Señorita Weirdo does have a friend.

DEVA: Too bad it’s a stuffed goose.

(Weird Melody tries to grab the goose. The four pass the goose around in a keep away game. During the next dialogue all sorts of sports are pantomimed with the goose being the center of the action.)

MERTON: Not sure you heard me, Sammy. I just asked you nicely to leave her alone.

SAMMY: Make me, Mermaid.

MERTON: What did you say?

(Enter Mrs. Binding, Principal Clearcut, Professor Valentino and Señora Basil)

SAMMY: I said, make me, Mermaid.
MERTON: Okay, then, since you asked me so nicely... I have no choice.

(Merton raises his arm as if to throw a punch at Sammy.)

SEÑORA BASIL: (Spanish accent) Hold everything, Merton! Cease and desist!

(Merton freezes in punch position, but still is able to converse. All others, but the teachers, freeze completely.)

MRS. BINDING: Merton dear, remember, we always have choices.

MERTON: But he chose to call me Mermaid. So I choose to smash his nose in.

SEÑORA BASIL: Merton, last month, Julio Greenberg ended up in the emergency room.

MERTON: An accident. My fist just happened to contact his cheekbone.

CLEARCUT: Was it an accident when you ripped the toilet out of the men’s room when we lost the basketball championship?

MRS. BINDING: Or when you punched a hole in my door after I gave you detention for punching a hole in my bulletin board?

CLEARCUT: Merton Mercudio, your time has arrived. Until you can learn to make better choices, I am suspending you from school.

MERTON: Please, Dr. Clearcut, don’t send me home. My parents will kill me.

CLEARCUT: Not to worry. You won’t be going home.

ALL TEACHERS: Merton Mercudio, we hereby sentence you to four full minutes in Droon.

MERTON: What’s Droon? And what can I possibly learn there in four minutes?

PROFESSOR VALENTINO: Ah, well, four minutes in Droon.... is a lifetime.
SONG: DROON

(During the song, all break the freeze. If doubling, school characters don the costume of their alter-egos. All the other characters of Droon enter and sing as they set the stage for the story. The director should feel free to assign different groups/solos to parts of the song as desired.)

COMPANY: (Sings)

Droon—
Is a kind of a name
For a kind of a place
Droon—
Is a lifetime of thought
But a moment in space
Droon—
Is a place that you’ve been
But a place you may never have
Heard of—at all

It’s a voice, it’s a prayer
It’s a song, it’s a wish
It’s a call—
Listen, and you’ll hear it

Droon—
Always there if you need it
It’s not hard to find—your
Droon—
Where the scenery changes
When you change your mind
Droon—
It’s the scene that you write
And the story you want
To come true
And it’s all about you

Move the pieces, set the stage
Just the way you want it to be
You’re the king or the queen
Or the sage
Nasty villain, handsome hero
Ladies three
Princess in distress
Monsters, mystery
Magic, misery
Villainy and vanity
And irony, insanity
And gluttony, calamity
It’s your story

ACT ONE
Scene Two

(SETTING: FOREST OF KING MELTDOWN; A MEDIEVAL GREAT-SWORD HANGS OBVIOUSLY FROM A TREE)

At rise, Merton takes in his surroundings. Noticing the sword, he can’t resist trying it out. Suddenly, Grumbo attacks from nowhere. Merton is surprised, but fights admirably, though the sword is way too heavy for him to handle. The girlgons enter with various alternate medieval weapons; baselard/dagger, longbow, a spear etc. and proceed to cheer him on.)

BEAUTIO: Don’t swing it like that! Thrust. Thrust and stab. That’s how it’s done.

(Merton has trouble controlling the length of the great sword. Between blows, he grabs at a smaller weapon being offered him by Snootio.)

SNOOTIO: That’s right, Martin. The baselard is what you need at close quarters, something short. Now charge and thrust. And stop waving it around like a feather-duster.

(Merton stops waving and tries an impotent thrust or two.)

MOODIO: That your best shot, Martin?

MERTON: It’s Merton.

MOODIO: Well, Merton, you have about five seconds ‘til you’re grindylow paté.

(The fight continues. Finally, Grumbo advances, stops, sneezes, coughs and wheezes right at Merton who takes one whiff of the grindylow’s vile breath and keels over. All, including Grumbo, surround him.)

BEAUTIO: You were supposed to let him win, not knock him out.

GRUMBO: I know, I know. (Sneezes) It’s the asthma again. Snootio, are you wearing that ragweed perfume again?

SNOOTIO: No. I threw that out long ago.

© Family Plays
MOODIO: No she didn’t. I saw her hiding it underneath the—

SNOOTIO: Shut-up, Moodio. Anyway, I ‘m not wearing any. See?

(She goes over to Grumbo who takes a sniff and nothing happens.)

GRUMBO: Well, it could be anything then. The trees, the mold, the air—everything’s potential torture for an allergy sufferer like myself...

BEAUTIO: You know we’re going to have to report this to the king.

GRUMBO: ... and I couldn’t take my medicine because I think it’s been giving me a rash. Do you see this thing on my back? Is it still red? It was bright red this morning and it itched like crazy. I’m just lucky I made it out in time.

SNOOTIO: And what a good job you’ve done. He’s out cold.

GRUMBO: I was in such a hurry, I forgot to brush this morning. I know my breath can be pretty bad. Hold on, let me check.

(She breathes into her claw and smells it. Then she passes out.)

MOODIO: Oh, fabulous. Look at the two of them.

SNOOTIO: (Snorts) Yeah, beauty and the beast. (Laughs) Get it? Beauty and the beast?

BEAUTIO: King Meltdown won’t think it’s so funny. Remember last time things went wrong, he suspended our allowance for a month?

MOODIO: Yeah. Why did he have to take it out on us?

SNOOTIO: Maybe because it was our fault?

BEAUTIO: Well, I’m out of here. We only have a few good shopping hours before he finds out and cuts us off. I’m running dangerously low on hair products.

MOODIO: But we’re supposed to report it to him. Right away.
BEAUTIO: And we will. Right away—after we do our shopping.

SNOOTIO: An emergency is an emergency. I’m starting to look dangerously brunette.

BEAUTIO: Okay, then. Let’s go, girls!

(They exit. Grumbo slowly comes to, checks herself thoroughly for broken bones and tries to scratch the unreachable itchy rash on her back. She approaches Merton who is still unconscious. She sits him up against a rock and tries to bring him to.)

GRUMBO: Come on, kid. Wake up. Wake up. It wasn’t that bad, was it?

MERTON: (Moaning) Where am I?

(Merton opens his eyes, sees Grumbo and screams, jumps up and grabs the fallen sword with one hand and protects his nose with the other.)

MERTON: Don’t come any closer!

GRUMBO: Please, it’s just “grindygestion.”

MERTON: Uaagh!

GRUMBO: I guess the high fiber diet isn’t working. Listen, I know you barely know me, but you see, I have this rash on my back—at least I think it’s a rash, though it could be a hive or a touch of eczema but I doubt that because it doesn’t have any dry patches... Anyway, I’d be much obliged if you would scratch it.

MERTON: Who are you?

GRUMBO: I am Grumbo, the Grindylow—and you are Merton, the nose terminator. Charmed to meet you. (She tries to shake his hand but he extends the sword, which she shakes instead) Now that we’ve met, would you mind? (She turns around and Merton hesitantly scratches her back with the tip of the sword.) Up a little more... down... there! Right there. Ahhh!

MERTON: How do you know about me?
GRUMBO: King Meltdown knows all. He’s my boss and he told me. He also told me not to let you out of my sight and make sure you fulfill your mission—no matter what.

MERTON: What’s my mission?

GRUMBO: I don’t know that. They don’t tell me everything around here, you know. It’s for my own protection.

MERTON: (Getting her in a headlock position) You’re going to need protection if I don’t get some answers soon, I’m going to—

GRUMBO: Please! I have a lower back problem, and don’t forget the rash... it may be contagious.

(An ominous roll of thunder is heard and the three girlgons rush in with shopping bags.)

MOODIO: Cease and desist!

SNOOTIO: Unhand that grindylow!

MOODIO: What’s this? Our little Marty is conscious for five minutes and already, he’s fighting.

MERTON: (Punctuating by squeezing Grumbo) It’s Merton. My name is Merton!

GRUMBO: Ow! Ow! Yeow!

SNOOTIO: (Clicking tongue admonishingly) Isn’t that why you’re here? To learn how to control your anger?

MERTON: I’m lost, ok? I’m in a strange forest with strange creatures, one of which almost killed me with her breath. If I don’t get some information right now, I snuff the grindylow! How’s that for being in control?

BEAUTIO: Ooh. He’s even cuter when he’s mad.

MOODIO: Definitely. So, Marvin, what are you doing later?

SNOOTIO: Oh, no you don’t, I saw him first...
