PLACE: The Black Forest.

TIME: Once Upon a Time.

NOTE: Before starting rehearsals, chalk off your stage or rehearsal space as indicated above in the Chart of Stage Positions. Then teach your actors the meanings and positions of these fundamental terms of stage movement by having them walk from one position to another until they are familiar with them. The use of these abbreviated terms in directing the play saves time, speeds up rehearsals, and reduces the amount of explanation the director has to give to his actors.
ACT ONE

TIME. Once upon a time . . . nearly every story begins with those words . . . "once upon a time" . . . but did you ever think what or who they mean? Well, they mean me. I'm Miss On Time. You may know my brother Mark Time, or my sister, May Time. I know you know my father -- Father Time. He started the whole Time business, but he's semi-retired now and I take a lot of his calls. Especially in the Story Department . . . because stories depend a lot On Time. Well, I may as well get on with it. Once upon a Time . . .

(As she speaks, the curtains open on a simple set suggesting an exterior. There are a few trees or bushes and flowers about. There maybe as much or as little as the designer wishes; the only thing there must be is a tree which unfolds later into a house.)
there was a happy land ruled by a king.

I'm the king and my name is . . . my name is . . . it's on the tip of my tongue . . . I beg your pardon, but what is my name?

King Absent-Minded, your majesty.

Hmm. Very apt, if I say so myself.

And this King had a lovely, motherless daughter.

And her name?

And her name was Snow White.

(SNOW WHITE steps out from behind a tree.)

Oh, yes. My lovely, motherless daughter, Snow White.

You called, Father?
KING
    Yes, I guess I did... but... I do remember -- (Looking at TIME.) -- I wanted to talk to you privately.

TIME
    Excuse me. (She tap dances toward the wings.
To audience.) That's a time step.
    (She exits R.)

KING (having taken a few steps forward to watch her exit).
    Hmmm. Very pleasant girl. (SNOW WHITE moves to beside him. She waits for him to turn and look at her, but he continues to gaze offstage.
        Finally she coughs a little to get his attention.
        He still doesn't turn. She coughs louder and louder. He turns, and sees her.) Ah, Snow White...

SNOW WHITE
    Yes, Father.
    (They stand looking at each other and smiling, with the smiles getting bigger and bigger.)

KING (finally breaking the silence).
    Well?

SNOW WHITE
    Well, Father?

KING
    Uh, well, what can I do for you, my child?

SNOW WHITE
    But you asked to see me, Father.
KING
I did? Oh! Oh, yes, I did, didn't I? Now let me see. What could have been so important? Ah, yes, of course. I wanted to tell you that I have remarried.

SNOW WHITE
Remarried, Father?

KING
Yes. I can't quite believe it myself. It all happened so fast. But now the kingdom will have a new queen and you, my sweet, will have a new mother.

SNOW WHITE
How exciting, Father. What is she like? When will she come? Oh, please, tell me.

KING
Now, now, calm down, my child. First of all, if I remember correctly, the coach is bringing Queen Bella . . . Queen Bella? . . . yes, Queen Bella this afternoon.

SNOW WHITE
Bella. What a beautiful name.

KING (dreamily).
An appropriate name for a beautiful woman.

SNOW WHITE (smiling with affection at the KING).
How romantic, Father.

KING (flustered).
It is, sort of, isn't it? Hmm. Oh, well, I must be going. Lots of things to be done. Oh, yes, indeed.
(The KING exits UR as SNOW WHITE dances around singing happily.)
SNOW WHITE
I feel simply marvelous. (She stops dancing.) I can't wait to tell my friends. (Calling in different directions.) Bunny! Bonnie! Primrose! Tillie!

(BUNNY AND BONNIE, the rabbits, hop out from L. PRIMROSE, the skunk, slinks out in a tango step, with a rose between her teeth, from stage R; and TILLIE, the turtle, comes out slowly, inching her way from UL.)

BUNNY
What's up, Snow White?

BONNIE (still hopping).
You look so hoppingly happy.

SNOW WHITE (clasping Bonnie's paws and hopping up and down).
Oh, I am. I've got news for you!

PRIMROSE (giving SNOW WHITE the rose).
A rose is a rose is a rose, from the skunk with a nose for the news.

TILLIE (who still hasn't reached the others).
Don't say a word until I get there!

ALL
Well, hurry, hurry, Tillie Turtle!

TILLIE (huffing and puffing).
I'm hurrying. Have you ever seen me move so fast before?
(Everyone surrounds SNOW WHITE.)
SNOW WHITE
   Friends, what have I wanted more than anything in the world?

BONNIE (to BUNNY).
   We're playing "Twenty Questions." (To SNOW WHITE.) I know! A date with that new prince who moved into the neighborhood.

SNOW WHITE (embarrassed).
   No . . . I admit that has crossed my mind--but this is something I've prayed for, for as long as I can remember. I have a new mother!

BONNIE (excited).
   Do you mean your father has remarried?

SNOW WHITE
   Yes.

BUNNY
   And we have a new queen?

SNOW WHITE (nodding).
   A new queen who arrives today!

TILLIE
   Today? Let's plan a celebration.

PRIMROSE
   I know what! We'll go and pick some flowers for her and that'll make her feel welcome.

ALL
   What a good idea!
SNOW WHITE
We'll have to hurry. We don't have much time.

(TIME enters DR.)

TIME
How much time do you need?
(She moves one of the hands on her clock face back and waves them off. They all exit in a flurry of excitement, with TILLIE inching her way along as fast as possible. TIME bends over so that the sand in the hourglass on her head empties to the other side.)

(The PRINCE enters R, sees TIME bent over, approaches her and bends over to speak to her.)

PRINCE
I beg your pardon, but I'm Prince Good-Hearted.

TIME
That's all right. We've heard about you.

PRINCE
I'm new around here and I can't seem to find my way home.

TIME (pointing off L).
Yours is the second castle to the left on the other side of the bridge.

PRINCE
Thank you. (Walking L, speaking out front.) I hate to see Time being wasted.
(He exits L.)
TIME (still bent over).
   He's a nice boy, if you like them tall and handsome. (She taps her hourglass and stands up.)
Well, Time's up! The queen is coming now, preceded by her loyal servant Maid Dim Witty.

   (TIME exits L as MAID DIM WITTY comes dragging on stage R, loaded down with baggage, some in each hand, one suitcase under each arm, and two bags connected by a rope hung around her neck, while she pushes one suitcase along ahead of her with her foot.)

DIM WITTY (speaking over her shoulder).
I'm as loyal a servant as you shall see, but this is really carrying devotion a little too far. (She stops and looks around.) Whew! We're almost at the castle. I never thought I'd still be standing.
   (At that point she collapses like a rag doll.)

   (The QUEEN enters from stage R.)

QUEEN
Up, up! Get up, you lazy thing! (Out front.)
They just don't make servants the way they used to.
   (MAID DIM WITTY tries to get up several times and keeps collapsing back down, with the bags getting upset and in the way.)

DIM WITTY
I'm sorry, my Queen, I just need a few minutes to regain my strength.
QUEEN
First the coach broke down and now you.

DIM WITTY
I still don't understand why we didn't make the trip on your broom.

QUEEN (looking around).
Shh! Those days are gone forever. (Drawing herself up as straight as possible.) I'm a respectable married woman now.

DIM WITTY
But we did have fun, didn't we? It was a pleasure watching you in action.

QUEEN (with a wicked gleam in her eye).
I always did have a few good tricks up my sleeve. (She waves her hands around in the air and then points them at DIM WITTY, who jumps up as though she had sat on a tack.) I threw that in for old times' sake.

DIM WITTY (with admiration).
What an artist!

QUEEN (Sluffing it off with a wave of her hand).
It was nothing. But before we go any further, hand me my mirror.

DIM WITTY
Yes, my Queen.
(She opens a bag, takes out a hand mirror and gives it to the QUEEN.)

QUEEN (preening herself in the mirror).
Mirror, mirror, in my hand, who is the fairest in the land?
VOICE OF MIRROR (read from offstage; in a bored voice).
You, O Queen, are the fairest I see,
Now put me back and let me be.

QUEEN (kissing mirror).
Oh, I love you, you marvelous creature, you!
(She hands mirror to DIM WITTY, who puts it away.) Well, I guess I'm ready to make my grand entrance now.

DIM WITTY
Yes, Queen Bella.

(DIM WITTY hurriedly circles the QUEEN and adjusts her dress. As she does, SNOW WHITE and her friends return DL carrying flowers, in time to hear the name "Queen Bella." They rush to her, with TILLIE lagging behind.)

TILLIE
Wait for me!

OTHERS
We're waiting
(BUNNY and BONNIE get on either side of TILLIE and help her along, half lifting her off the ground.)

SNOW WHITE (handing her flowers to the QUEEN).
Queen Bella, we're so happy to see you.

PRIMROSE
Welcome.
(She hands her flowers to the QUEEN.)
QUEEN (trying to give them back).

Take these terrible things away. (Starting to sneeze.) I have hay fever. (She sneezes again. BUNNY and BONNIE try to give her their flowers. QUEEN turns her head away, rejecting the flowers. Sneezing.) I hate flowers. (Sneeze.) Get away from me! If there's anything I dislike more than flowers, it's animals! (Sneeze.) And -- (Looking at SNOW WHITE.) -- Children are the worst of all! (Sneeze.)

(SNOW WHITE and the animals are huddled together.)

SNOW WHITE
I'm suddenly afraid.

(The KING enters, followed by his servant girl, SCULLY.)

KING
Ah, my dear wife, you have arrived. (He extends his arms for an embrace, the QUEEN extends hers to receive it, but the KING goes past her and up to DIM WITTY.) Wife, you've changed.

QUEEN (annoyed).
Husband, I'm over here.

KING (turning around to face her).
What? What's that? (He looks at DIM WITTY, then back at the QUEEN.) Oh, but of course. I'd know you anywhere. (He kisses her cheek.) Welcome to my humble castle.

QUEEN
My dear. (Out front:) Idiot!
KING (seeing SNOW WHITE).
   Ah, I see you've already met my daughter . . .
   ah . . . White Snow.

SNOW WHITE
   Snow White, Father.

KING
   Oh, yes, that's what I said . . . Snow . . .
   ah . . . White.

QUEEN
   Your . . . your daughter? (Laughing nervously.)
   I should have realized that this lovely child was the princess. (She moves to SNOW WHITE, putting her arm around her in an awkward manner.) My sweet.

SNOW WHITE (still afraid of her).
   Queen Bella . . .

QUEEN
   Call me -- (Through clenched teeth.) --"Mother."

KING
   I knew you two would love each other. And now,
   dear wife, come with me and see your new castle.
   I always say a man's castle is his home. (He extends his arm to the QUEEN and as they start off UR, he turns to SCULLY.) Scully, help with the baggage.

QUEEN (to SNOW WHITE).
   I'll see you later, dear, and we'll have a heart­ to-heart talk.
   (The KING and QUEEN go out together.)

BUNNY (to BONNIE).
   A heart-to-heart talk? Don't you think she'll be operating under a handicap?
